About

PHILOSOPHY OF CARE

Alex Serwatka is a licensed and certified athletic trainer at Goshen Orthopedics. He works closely with student athletes at Concord High School to prevent, diagnose and treat sports injuries.

For Alex, athletic training goes beyond emergency services and rehabilitation. He educates students on the importance of a positive attitude and how it can affect their emotional and mental health.

Sports are a big part of life for Alex, even when he's away from campus. He is an avid weightlifter and brings his talents as a collegiate tennis player to the court. Reading, the outdoors and travel also interest him. His goal: travel to every state in the U.S. and as many countries of the world as possible.

Education

Clinical Interest & Research

Alex knows personally what an athletic injury feels like and what it takes to get back to a strong, healthy condition for athletic competition. That's why he takes an empathetic approach with patients as they go through rehabilitation to help them understand their injury. He believes educating patients about their concerns is as important as fixing their concerns.
