CHOOSE THE RIGHT CARE
FOR YOUR FAMILY

It's important to know where to go when you need medical attention. Whether you choose your primary care provider, urgent care or the emergency room makes a difference in cost, time and follow-up care.

FIRST OPTION

PRIMARY CARE

When it's not an emergency

Your primary healthcare provider should be your first option when you need routine medical attention. Whether it's a minor ailment, routine check-up or ongoing management of a chronic condition, your doctor provides the right level of care. Consider your doctor's office your medical home where providers know your medical history and how best to coordinate your health care.

Conditions your primary care provider treats include:
- Coughs, sore throat
- Lower back pain
- Fevers, colds
- Nausea, vomiting, diarrhea
- Headaches
- Ear aches
- Dizziness, faintness
- Minor allergic reactions
- Minor injuries and burns
- Preventive care
- Vaccinations/immunizations
- Physical exams
